Commentary

The Fund posted a negative performance this month underperforming the benchmark following the double-digit price declines registered by most of the holdings in the portfolio. The only positive contributors to the Fund's performance were ETF L&G Gold Mining, Mondadori and Esprinet. ETF L&G Gold Mining rose on the back of the rebound of gold price. Mondadori gained as the company is progressing in the negotiations for the sale of its France magazine business and it finalized the disposal of the loss-making Panorama magazine in Italy. The main detractors to the Fund performance during the month were Acerinox, Fiat Chrysler Automobiles, Danieli, LVMH and HeidelbergCement. Acerinox and HeidelbergCement dropped as both companies cut their 2018 guidance. FCA declined despite the successful disposal of Magneti Marelli for 6.2bn€ and the announcement of an extraordinary dividend as the stock was dragged down by the steep declines registered by the Auto sector. Danieli dropped as the company announced a guidance for the new fiscal year 2019 which fell below market expectations. LVMH suffered from the declines registered by the entire luxury sector following renewed concerns on Chinese consumers shopping abroad. During the month the main trades executed had been the sale of ETF L&G Gold Mining and the purchase of Kering.
