Commentary

The Fund posted a negative performance in August, performing anyway substantially in line with the main European equity markets. The main positive contributors to the Fund performance had been Novo Nordisk, Gerresheimer, Merck, Demant and Terveystalo. Novo Nordisk soared after the company announced favourable trial results related to its best-selling obesity drug (Wegovy) cutting the risk of heart attacks or strokes. Gerresheimer rose as the German pharma packaging company is seen as a beneficiary from the potential market opportunity related to weight-loss drugs. Demant outperformed as the hearing aids company reported better-than-expected Q2 results and upgraded its 2023 guidance to reflect the improving outlook for its hearing aids business. The main detractors to the Fund performance during the month had been Dometic, Siemens Healthineers, Straumann, Carl Zeiss Meditec and Melia. Dometic declined following the general underperformance of consumer discretionary stocks, and the stock was also penalized by some negative newsflow coming from the North American boating industry, which is one of Dometic's main customers group. Siemens Healthineers underperformed after posting mixed quarterly results and lowering the margin outlook for its cancer-treatment unit Varian. During the month the main trades executed had been the sale of Fagron, Gerresheimer and Novo Nordisk, and the purchase of Siemens Healthineers, Qiagen and Carl Zeiss Meditec.
