Commentary

The Fund posted a negative performance in October, with certain segments of the portfolio particularly penalized by increasing interest rates. The main positive contributors to the Fund performance had been Ambea, Novo Nordisk, EssilorLuxottica, Fagron and Sol. Novo Nordisk outperformed as the Danish company raised its outlook for sales and profit for the third time this year as demand soared for its hit obesity drug Wegovy and diabetes treatment Ozempic. Fagron rose as the pharmaceuticals raw material supplier announced Q3 results ahead of expectations. The main detractors to the Fund performance during the month had been Sartorius, Tecan, Sanofi, Merck and Terveystalo. Sartorius plunged as the German life-science group issued a profit warning on 2023 citing longer than expected ongoing inventory reductions and an overall muted investment activity of customers mainly in China and USA, and it announced that its mid-term guidance is currently under review. Sanofi dropped as the French drugmaker missed analysts' third-quarter expectations and issued a disappointing guidance for 2024 and 2025. During the month the main trades executed had been the sale of Redcare Pharmacy and Fagron, and the purchase of Sanofi, Thor Industries and BB Biotech.
